REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

1. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: The cited prior art fails to teach alone or in combination the invention as claimed.

The claimed invention is a method of transforming an XML document structured according to set of XML grammar rules into an XML document structured according to subset of the set of XML grammar rules by retrieving grammar restriction style sheet containing transformation rules and transforming the data elements using transformation rules according to subset of the set of grammar rules.

The cited prior art in general teaches a structured XML documents according to the grammar rules but fails to teach transforming it into structured document according to subset of the set of grammar rules as claimed. Therefore the claimed invention is allowable over the cited prior art.
